TELLS THRILLS ABOARD PLANE

Kenneth G. Price, Mattapoisett, Enjoys Being Radio Man with Explorers

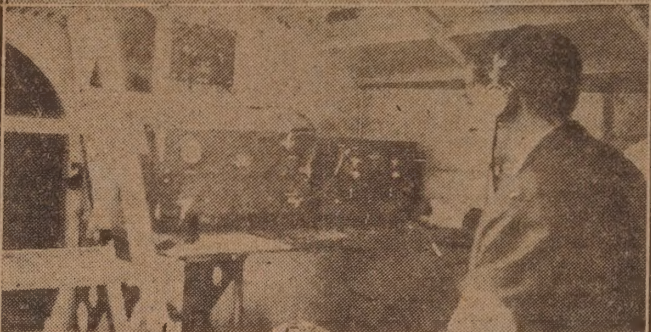

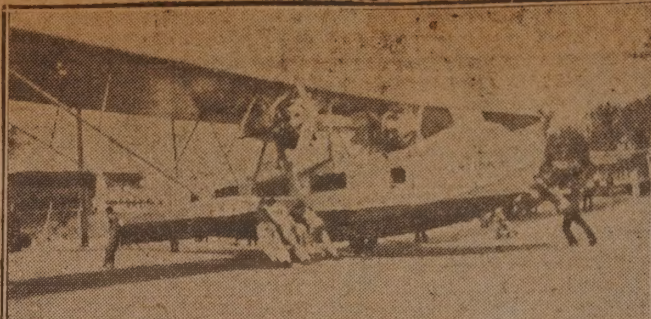

Writes of Waterspout, Terrified Natives, and Praises Haitian Food

The adventure of photographing a water spout from the air, recently described by Frederick Simpich, National Geographic society explorer, in 'The Standard', was one of many thrills which Kenneth G. Price, Mattapoisett, is sharing in his role of radio man on the giant seaplane Argentina carrying Mr. Simpich's party.

Mr. Price's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Price, 18 Marion road, Mattapoisett, are receiving enthusiastic letters from various parts of Central and South America which the Argentina party has touched on its way to Buenos Aires. There was keen competition among eligible radio men for the job Mr. Price landed, and he considers himself extraordinarily fortunate to have been the one to get it. He is employed by the New York, Rio, and Buenos Aires air transport line, which owns the Argentina.

Walks from His Sycamore
Street Home to Session of Post One, G. A. R.

John J. Holmes, veteran of the Civil war and one time junior vice commander of Post one, G. A. R., is celebrating his birthday today.

Mr. Holmes is 90. Yesterday afternoon he walked from his home, 44 Sycamore street, to the G. A. R. post meeting in the Cornell building, and climbed the four flights of stairs, 42 steps in all, that lead to the G. A. R. rooms on the upper floor. He has rarely missed the regular Wednesday afternoon meeting of Post one, the oldest continuously active post in the United States, which started out in 1866 with 600 members and now has dwindled to 10.

Reading The Standard is one of the nonagenarian's daily occupations. He says he thoroughly enjoys getting all the news of the day from the New Bedford newspaper. His eyesight is good and his interest in local and world affairs is keen. Mr. Holmes enjoys taking short walks. He goes to the drug store for cigars and to the barber shop to be shaved, and he gets thorough pleasure from an automobile ride when any of his friends have time to take him.

Many calls of congratulation have been coming in by telephone and in person to Mr. Holmes today. The call he was anticipating most this morning was the promised visit from his son, Frank C. Holmes, night foreman at the Union Street Railway car barn. A basket of fruit from the Daughters of Civil War Veterans was sent in this afternoon. Mr. Holmes, who has been married three times, is a widower.

Sidewalk and Roadway to Afford New Lanes

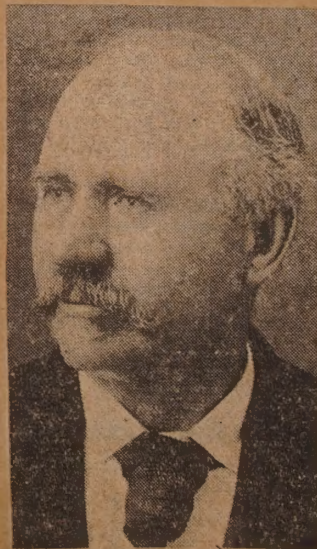

A glimpse into the near future is given by these photographs which outline improvements voted for the South End by the Board of Aldermen Thursday. The upper picture shows where the four foot granolithic walk, which is to be laid from the government reservation to the screen house on Rodney French boulevard west, will run. Automobiles will be allowed to park at the right of the walk. The small trees shown in the picture may be moved to the water side of the walk to afford them complete protection from being bumped by automobiles. The walk will cost about $2,400. Below is the second roadway to be built north of the present roadway on Rodney French boulevard, south, formerly Rodman avenue. The row of trees will be kept between the two roadways. They will be one way streets with traffic running in opposite directions. It is contended that the present roadway at the right is too narrow to accommodate congested traffic. The second roadway will cost between $20,000 and $25,000.

Mayor William Hale "Big Bill" Thompson, Chicago, left that city yesterday for his long-anticipated vacation at Nantucket. He is expected to reach the island at 6:30 tonight to join Mrs. Thompson, who preceded her husband to Nantucket several weeks ago.

Mayor Thompson arrived in Boston this morning and was to take a train to Woods Hole and there board an island boat for Nantucket. Reports from Chicago say he is not in the best of health and hopes to recondition himself thoroughly by resting, boating and bathing for a few weeks far from racketeering and politics.

The Thompsons have leased a house on the island owned by Mrs. Edwina Babcock, poet. Mrs. Thompson and the mayor's big official automobile have already become familiar on Nantucket.

The university has bestowed upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Political Sciences, equivalent to the American Doctor of Laws. The Royal universities are maintained by the government, and this degree is given by the university with the official endorsement of the Regent of Hungary and its Minister of Religion and Culture. Hungarian universities seldom bestow honorary degrees, and especially rarely give them out of their own country. So far as is known, this is the first which has come to America.

The window is expected to be completed by autumn, when the dedication program will be participated in by Miss Julia W. Rodman with whom Miss Williams lived for many years.

clerk of the New Bedford post office, and now of California, served as the subject for the next verse of the poem. Mr. Taber is an enthusiastic advocate of taxation of land values, commonly known as a single tax, referred to in the verse.

"I want to be chief mailing clerk and be like Mr. Taber,
I'd study economic problems and teach them to my neighbor.
Each morning for breakfast, to keep strong and well,
I'd have single tax served to me on the half shell,
And when dinner time came I'd play the host,
And treat my neighbors to a single tax roast,
And at night, to my economic teachings not to be lax,
I would have for supper warmed over single tax."

POST OFFICE POET WILL RETIRE AUG. 31 AFTER 38 YEARS SERVICE

George A. Chambers, Born on St. Patrick's Day 71 Years Ago, Recalls Public Appearance as Musician at 13 — Commemorates Events in Lives of Friends by Rhyme

June 29, 1930

After 38 years and one month of service as a letter carrier in this city, George A. Chambers, 123 Hillman street, will be retired on Aug. 31.

Serves Three Extension Periods.

Mr. Chambers has long been known by his associates at the New Bedford post office as the "post office poet." Friends and unusual happenings in the lives of his fellow workers have been taken as subjects of his numerous poems. Many have appeared in print, and some have been set to music.

Letter carriers are eligible for retirement after reaching 65, but Mr. Chambers, now 71, has served three extension periods of two years each, all that is permitted by the Post Office department. When he had reached the retirement age, he made application for permission to serve another two years because of general good health, but he had used up the three extra periods allowed.

As the oldest letter carrier in age working out of the New Bedford office, the first year he asked that he be changed to another route because mail there was too heavy.

Accordingly in 1899 he went back to the West End, his route being bounded by Court, Maitland, Ash, Newton and Richmond streets, and extending west to Oak Grove cemetery.

In 1906 Mr. Chambers was transferred to his present route, which includes the following territory: Maxfield street to Merrimac street, Purchase street to County street, and a part of Robeson and Summer streets. This route has been reduced to include only Sycamore street to Franklin street, and Purchase to County streets.

Born on St. Patrick's Day.

While St. Patrick's day may be the same as any other day to many New Bedford residents, it holds a particular significance for Mr. Chambers, whose cheery "top o' the mornin'" is so well known to the persons on his route.

For Mr. Chambers was born on St. Patrick's day, and in his boyhood he had the distinction of taking part for three years in St. Patrick's day parades, dressed in festive costume.

In addition to taking an interest in poetry, Mr. Chambers is a musician. He recalls many of the once well known musicians of this section.

"The funniest experience of my life as a musician has always seemed to occur on St. Patrick's day," the veteran carrier remarked. "I had played in public ever since I was 13, and, on my 17th birthday I went for the first time with the old Gilmore band in Providence to play in Fall River. We had to march a mile from the Fall River station, and not being accustomed to playing while marching, I did not see a mounted officer who was coming along, and I ran right into his horse, knocking off my hat and dropping and scattering my book and piccolo in opposite directions. I was mad enough when I dropped my instrument, but madder still when I heard the bass drummer laugh."

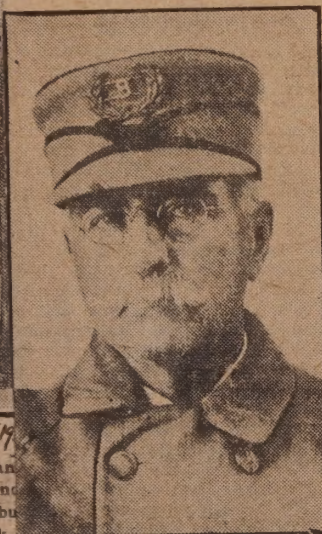

Mr. Chambers wrote a story on music and music conditions in New Bedford, which appeared in The Sunday Standard of Sept. 21, 1919. In the article he urged public support of music and musical groups as a means of remedying the lack of support of good music that was shown at that time in the city. And it is public support of musical groups and performances that is largely responsible for the artists now heard here, Mr. Chambers says.

Colleagues Subject of Verses.

Two verses of a poem characteristic of Mr. Chambers's writing, follow:

"I want to be a postal clerk, and at the bag rack stand,
A long tall duster on my back and papers in my hand,
And every time I'd make a throw and in the wrong bag it did go,
If any one should at me growl, you bet I'd prove their match;
I'd swear I didn't do it and blame it on to Hatch."

Silas S. Taber, formerly chief mailing

GEORGE A. CHAMBERS.

Mr. Chambers recalls many humorous and happy experiences that have occurred during this long tenure.

There are other carriers, however, with a longer service record. Mr. Chambers was appointed carrier Aug. 1, 1892, when Charles H. Gifford was postmaster. He later served under Postmasters Charles S. Ashley, David L. Parker, John Duff, Frank C. Barrows, George L. Olivier and Harold Winslow.

Covers Many Routes.

During his first two years as a carrier, Mr. Chambers was assigned to a South End route, bounded by Bedford, Allen, Rivet, Purchase (then Fourth street) and Bonney streets. He went to a West End route in 1894, which included the territory from the line of Hawthorn street to the school house on Shawmut avenue, to Ash street and west to Newton street.

In 1898 he was transferred to a center route, including the territory south of Union street bounded by Bedford, Pleasant and County streets. At the end of

LOBSTER MEASURES 27 INCHES

Aug 8, 1930

SAMUEL J. LOWE SHOWS CLAW

One of the largest lobsters ever caught in this vicinity has been brought into Nantucket by Captain Leslie Trott, Nantucket fisherman. It measured 27 inches in length, weighed 15 pounds, and had claws more than 12 inches long. It was caught in Nantucket sound. The largest lobster ever caught before weighed about nine pounds, Nantucket fishermen said. This particular one provided an excellent meal for Captain Trott's family and friends. Samuel J. Lowe, deputy game warden here, is pictured with one of the claws.

Excavation work preliminary to erection of a memorial to Andrew P. Doyle, for years before his death a prominent South End legislator, was started today at Doyle square, junction of Allen, Dartmouth and Bonney streets. Councilman John L. Almond, who sponsored the memorial project, said it is hoped to have the shaft in readiness for dedication in two weeks, and that state officials and former associates of Mr. Doyle will be invited to attend the exercises. The Street department is doing the preliminary work. The Sullivan Granite and Construction company recently received the contract for the curbing which is to be placed around the memorial. The curbing, which is cut in a special curved style, is to cost $1,125.

PAINTS SIGNS FOR ROCHESTER TERCENTENARY RITES

July 28, 1930

The buff-and-blue signs that marked the historic spots of Rochester, at the Rochester tercentenary celebration July 15, are the work of a Rochester woman. Mrs. Marian Nevius Peirce (above), the wife of C. Clifford Peirce of Rochester Center, designed and painted the signs which are explanatory of Rochester's history. She shares the credit with Miss Mary L. Holmes of Rochester, long a student of town archives, who first suggested the pictorial signs which Mrs. Peirce later painted. Mrs. Peirce before her marriage spent several years in New York where she was a designer. She insists her art has all been commercial and calls the signs with their silhouettes and lettering the merest hack-work. The drawing of the stagecoach was done after studying pictures of old stagecoaches. "I only did what I could to help out," Mrs. Peirce said when asked about the designing and painting of the signs. "When I found the painter they had planned to have was away and couldn't do the work for them, I offered to do it, for I knew I could make a sign that could be read, and that was all that was needed."

STANDARD NEWSIES GO TO BIG LEAGUE GAME

They're Off, and Full of Pep July 15-1930

A real big league ball game and an equally real big dinner in Boston was the reward enjoyed today by a group of Standard and Mercury carriers who were winners in a recent contest. A special bus took the boys to Boston where, under the supervision of John Barrows and Edward Roy, district managers, they attended the game between the Braves and the Chicago Cubs at Braves field. After the game they all had dinner, as guests of the newspapers, before they started home in the bus. Snapped just as they were ready to get into the bus to leave, 10 of the dozen boys who made the trip are: Front row, left to right: Nelson Torpey, New Bedford; Lawrence Kelly, Fall River; Stanley Pelczarski, New Bedford. Second row, Edward Corayer, Likeville; George Parent, West Carver; William Buckley, Wareham; George Burke, Mattapoisett. Back row, Ernest Brunette, New Bedford; George Pacheco, South Dartmouth; Norman Harpin, Acushnet. Frank Souza, Myricks, and Charles Boyce, Assonet, also were in the party.

To Resign

Since July 5, 1931

CHARLES A. GOULD

Charles A. Gould, president of the Steiger-Dudgeon company for the past 18 months, will tender his resignation this week, it was reliably learned last night. Mr. Gould became president in the reorganization in 1930.

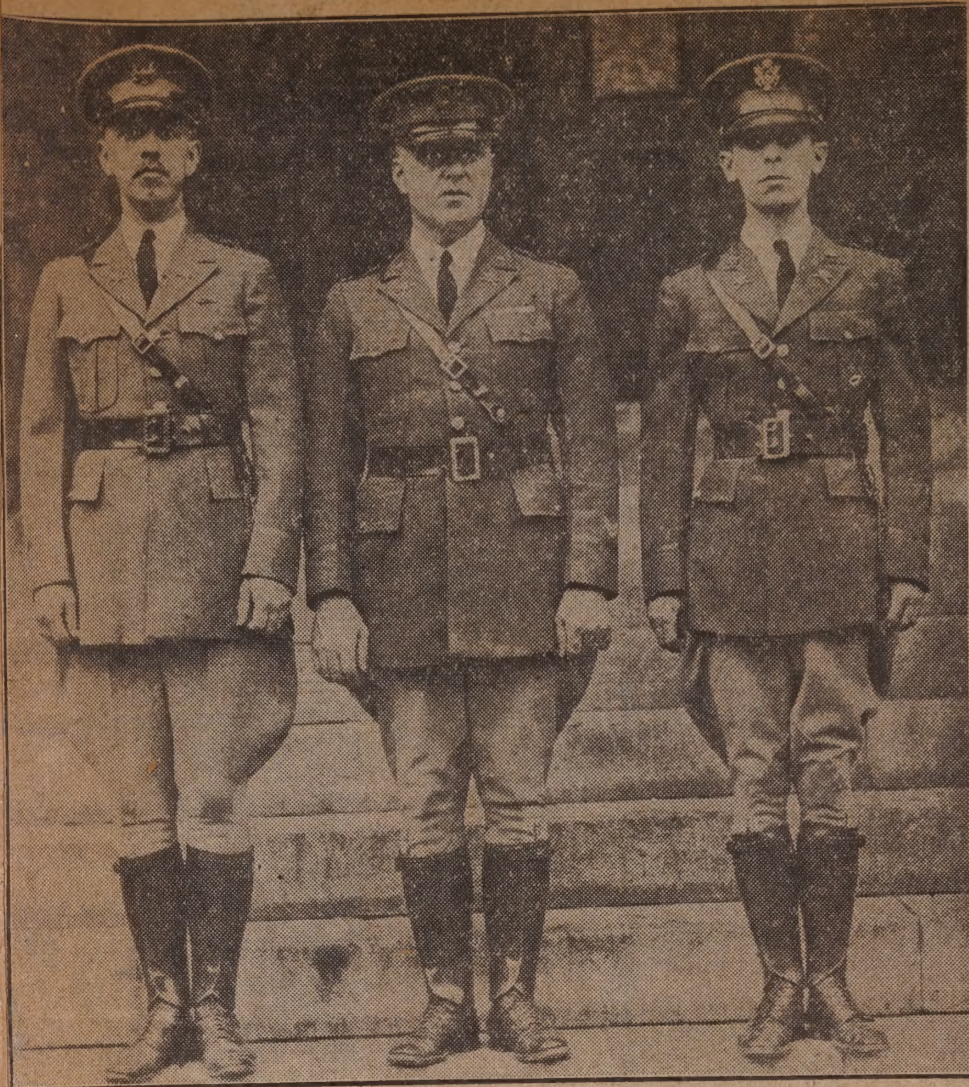

Harold Dudgeon, vice president and merchandise manager, and Stuart Dudgeon, men's buyer, will also resign according to the same report.

Mr. Gould's plans for the future are not definite and will not be announced before fall. For the summer, he will remain in New Bedford.

Battery E, 241st C. A. (H. D.) will go to Fort Wright this year with a complete change in officer personnel. Captain Jean S. Millette (center) commanding the battery in succession to Captain Richard Hoyle. First Lieutenant Charles H. Brennecke (left) goes as second in command, a promotion from his former post of second lieutenant. Second Lieutenant Anthony Mello (right), formerly sergeant with the battery goes as next in command. Battery E has the distinction of being the oldest military organization in the city, its history dating to 1852, when the original City Guards, an infantry organization, was formed here. The old City Guards were succeeded by Fourth company, C. A., when the unit was changed from an infantry organization to artillery. All the original records of its nearly 80 years of existence have been carefully preserved.

Leaving her footsteps to tell another interesting chapter in the history of the Long Plain Methodist church, Mrs. Isaac Braley, 85, oldest member of the church, dedicated the new cement walk leading to the church, by walking over it the other evening before it was completely dried.

Mrs. Braley joined the church in 1863 and has been active since then. Mrs. J. E. Borden, a neighbor of Mrs. Braley and a member since 1879, was to accompany her on her dedication walk, but due to ill health at the time, was unable to perform her part.

The walk was laid by the men's club of the church. The cement was donated by Everett C. Morse and the use of the mixer by Jehro Ashley.

South End Plot Has Five Holes

On Calumet street, just south of the municipal bathing beach, South End youngsters have constructed this tiny golf course, and play there every fair day. The lads, whose ages range from 10 to 12, filled in the plot with earth, leveled it off, rolled it, and laid out the course. The latter job was done chiefly by Milton Rocha, about 10. There are five holes. Clubs and balls used are of the variety sold in the 10 cent stores. The boys are not attempting to do any commercial business on their course. The lot is about 12 feet wide and 20 feet deep. The upper picture shows a group at play. Oct. 26, 1930

HOWLAND HOUSE ON HAWTHORN STREET

Negotiations are being completed for the sale of the Howland house, 9 Hawthorn street, residence of the late Miss Mary Tucker Howland, to Mrs. Jean K. Austin. Mrs. Austin is the mother of Mrs. Seabury Stanton, and is a sister of Frank B. Kellogg, secretary of state in the Cabinet of President Coolidge. Miss Howland made her home in the Hawthorn street residence up to the time of her death. It had long been in the Howland family, and was for a good many years the home of both Miss Howland and her sister, Miss Alice Russell Howland, who died a number of years ago. The property is one of the fine homes on the north side of Hawthorn street. It has a frontage of 71 feet, and there are 61 rods of land. Mrs. Austin has formerly resided in an apartment at 103 Hawthorn street.

Precedent demands him, in his official capacity, to be present in the next room when the Duchess gives birth to her second child, possible heir to the throne. Mrs. Caffrey lives at 629 County street. The Duchess of York has a daughter of four who is now in direct line from the throne.

250 Attend Annual Outing in Westport

About 250 employees of Cherry and company, almost the entire personnel, turned out yesterday for their annual outing in Westport. Events were divided into two sections. The assembly gathered first at Grange hall for a lobster bake. Speeches were omitted and the participants devoted themselves to the meal and an impromptu good time. Then they went to the summer residence of George R. Cherry on Drift road for sports events. There was time for a baseball game despite the rain. Others enjoyed miniature golf and other games. Swimming and boating were popular. Here are scenes at the outing: (1) Estelle Lewis, in shorts, exemplifies the modern mode. (2) Katherine Whittaker, Doris Schlais, Gaby Godreau and Bertille Dobbryn, calling them from left to right, show jolly disregard for the weather. (3) Little Virginia Humphrey, daughter of William Humphrey, was one of the most charming guests. (4) George R. Cherry and four of his oldest employees. Left to right they are, Miss Katherine Sullivan, employed for 32 years; Mrs. Richard Davis, 32 years; Mr. Cherry; Mrs. Florence Lemos, 30 years, and Miss M. Abbie Leavitt, 31 years. (5) Boating was a popular sport. Left to right are the Misses Elizabeth Regan, Margaret O'Brien, Elizabeth Macdonald, Maris Sylvia and Ida Garmon.

Oct 14, 1930

Far to the north of us, a small galley legging, was caught in a ring of them, the givers of death, the terrors of the main, scourgers of the east coast, and burst into flame. And the black reek of storm swallowed the fleet.

We thought no more of pirate bane. The sea seized us in its teeth. Neptune rode the storm-track and beat us down; Poseidon's heart was darkened, and hurled us back; and Minos-Eye did ~~us~~ <sup>did</sup> ~~crash~~ <sup>crash</sup> and groan, and rise and fall, and slip and slide, and leap upon the sea-horses, an drop into the foamy abysses. Nor knew we then the fate of other ships. We rode upon chaos and the Furies yelled upon the windy blast.

Nor could I see e'en Minos in the prow, though I could now and again catch his mighty voice. ~~Pushing~~ <sup>Pushing</sup> brine rose over us and broke crashing upon the oppress deck; and I beheld Tictys, dimly, beside me, clutching to save himself, for the sea-sprites had him by his shapely legs, to drag him down.

I threw off my helm of goodly brocade and leaped into the ~~rising~~ <sup>rising</sup> storm, and caught him by his streaming hair. ~~Over~~ <sup>Over</sup> we went into the ocean deeps, helpless and robbed of breath, beaten and hurled about; yet through all I held Tictys fast.

I struck upward to the raging crests. I breathed again the brine-salt air. The sea smote me, and I smote back the sea; and like a rider upon a mad steed I plunged and drove through the sea-god's rage.

Now with fearful force I was hurled against the broken beams of that ~~wrecked~~ <sup>wrecked</sup> pirate-raft, and caught and held them; and we rode through the torment; but Minos-Eye had vanished in the storm.

And he also wanted to bring his friend and classmate, James L. McGehee of Mississippi, with him. An old "flivver" of war time vintage offered an excellent method of defeating the high cost of transportation. Purchased from a Georgia farmer for $20 the faithful old vehicle brought the boys to Massachusetts with flying colors, only a single flat tire disturbing the serenity of the trip, which included side visits to various historical spots on the way north. Five days were required for the trip. The lads are shown above giving the car an overhauling after their arrival. Young Macy was Captain of the crack rifle team of N. B. H. ## HALLOWEEN DANCE AT STATE BALLROOM

Club Royal Orchestra Will Play

Delightful Halloween entertainment is promised for next Thursday night, when a Halloween dance will be given in the State ballroom, atop the golf course, in the State theater building. A splendid dance surface has been provided, and that the music will be of the best has been made certain by the engagement of George Krumholz and his Club Royal orchestra, under the personal direction of Charles H. Simmons. This orchestra achieved great popularity with the dance devotees of New Bedford and vicinity during its eight months engagement at Lincoln park. The hours of the Halloween dance will be from 8 to 12; and admission is 50 cents. The dance will cause no interference with the golf course on the floor below, where play will continue as usual.

Here is the respirator which physicians say it is so essential for St. Luke's hospital to have. Miss Frances McGaan, 23 year old student nurse, who has been kept alive since the early part of September by the use of a respirator at St. Luke's hospital, Chicago, is well on her way to recovery. Miss McGaan was placed in the "breathing machine" after her lungs became paralyzed from infantile paralysis. She still spends all but a short period of each day in the machine, but the machine is now doing only one-sixth of the work of her breathing, the rest she is able to do herself. She is shown here in the machine with her nurse. A fund of $2,000 is being solicited by public subscription to place such a machine in New Bedford. Money may be left at the First National bank.

GIANT RED WOOD ON VIEW HERE

W. N. Lawton Tells Mayor of Big Trees

Mayor Ashley listened with interest Thursday to W. N. Lawton as he told of the giant red wood trees of California. Some years ago, it would have been necessary to travel to California, but in this day, when "mountains are brought to Mohammed," New Bedford people will only have to go to Steiger Dudgeon's to see the red wood. There will be found a section of a giant red wood tree 862 years old, transported here by the Redwood Sales company of California where all the red wood in the world grows, except a small amount which overlaps the Oregon state line. This section of the red wood, like many others, more than 10 feet in diameter, is but a sample of the 270,000 acres of such trees, 30,000 acres of which are reserved for national parks, and the rest used for commercial purposes since 1863.

Dec. 10, 1930

Steam Shovels Start Digging

Excavation for the foundation of an addition to Fairhaven High school was begun yesterday with steam shovels, trucks and a small number of workmen employed. More men will be taken on as the work progresses and the job, estimated to be completed in seven months, will give employment to a considerable number of men, thereby serving materially to relieve the town's unemployment problem. The addition will be erected on what is now the girl's hockey field, directly in the rear of the present building.

LABOR OF LOVE—The smiles of poor children on Christmas day will reward these firemen at station eight for the care they are lavishing as they restore broken and disused toys.
